plant, Wellsville, today.
Addition of the unit will mean the expenditure, it is understod, of approximately $60,000 and a step forward in production at the Wellsville plant.

Expect Increase In Business. The new equipment is designed for the manufacture of enameling stock of a higher grade than has ever been made at the plant. Coincident with the installation of the 'pickler" and drying machine, workmen are enlarging the pickling house, and are also installing a new electric crane in this department.

Installation of the new equipment indicates that the company is anticipating an incluse in the manufacture of the enameling product which, in turn, would mean steadler operation for the entire mil! Jobs for 75 Men.

The expansion will mean the employment of probably 75 additional Workmen are on the job in the pickling house practically night and day, rushing the stallation of the new equipment The work may be completed before the end of July.

Chief of Police Ralph Smith of Chester today is investigating a holdup which occurred yesterday on the Chester-Newell road, in which John Summers, 55, employed as kiln fireman by the Horton Specialty company, was robbed of $13 at the point of a gun by three masked men.

Summers left the plant shortly after midnight for his room near First street and had reached a point close to the Finley Brothers' Lumber com pany when he was confronted by the men. Placing a gun at his head one of the bandits commanded him to "stick 'em up." He complied with the demand and another of the group ex tracted the money from his pocket.

Sub-Division Legislation

Whether East Liverpool shall insist that owners of new Bub-divisions establish grade lines and comply with other requirements in seeking a place within the municipality for their property will be determined Monday, when council considers Mayor Ralph C. Benedum's veto of a recently enacted ordinance accepting a plat.

The mayor vetoed the proposed acceptance of the subdivision because the planning commission failed to approve the plat, in accepting which councilmen attached a rider which repeals legislation that has been on the city ordinance books since 1903.

The problem facing the councilmen should be solved before final action is taken on the acceptance of the sub-division. There is no serious objection to the plat except a disagreement over the width of a street which will connect two main thoroughfares. However, there is objection to repeal of legislation which requires establishment of grade lines, etc.

The administration and council members should forget personal differences, if any exist. The logical move should be to confer with the planning commission and other civic interests in mapping out a definite policy, then proceed with the legislative enactments.

One might naturally think that the expense of such an investigation would fall upon the county and that the product of evolution. As geologic surveys require authorization for it would be voted by the commissioners. Such would be the course ordinarily, but not in Chicago under present-day conditions. Instead a number of the county commissioners have held aloof from the meetings of that board to make such authorization impossible. They do not refuse to vote funds; they simply exercise care not to be in position where they may be called upon to vote.

Cook county has had many riots in the past in which many, in the aggregate, have been killed. She has had holdups almost without number, and the same may be said in regard to bombings. Gangsters shoot up Alanskan. her streets, making them the scenes of their battles. Bandits murder and rob her citizens. Rum runners and bootleggers openly defy the law. The Chicago papers speak of saloons saloonists and bartenders just as they dia before the Volstead bill became a law. The police authorities refer to them in the same matter-of-course way. So little reliance is placed upon the police authoricent took into partnership a notorious gangster for the protection of himself and his property-a plan, it may be said, which thus far has brought excellent results, for no attempts at violence have been made against either his person or lis property since he took the gang leader into association with him, although they were frequent previously

Yet all these facts combined contribute less of an indictment of conditions in Cook county than the studied inactivity of the authorities in suppressing crime and the handicaps they interpose to its suppression.

Yes, It's Summer

According to the calendar, summer was ushered in the

One might experience some difficulty determining the Beason, should one solely rely upon the brand of weather which the official meteorologists have dished out up to and including the present typewriting.

However, than this season there is none more welcome, none greeted with greater acclaim from young and old and none so abundantly endowed with gifts for humanity. If the weather man will permit the skles to clear and a little clear and warm sunshine to seep into East Liverpool, there isn't any question of the glad reception the arrival of the new season will receive.

Seriously, though, East Liverpool should dedicate this new season to health and happiness. By its very nature this season above all others is provided for mankind. It is the season for work and play, but primarily for being out of doors. There is a driving energy which is to be absorbed from that summer sun that the world of toil may survive the rigors and labor of the other three seasons of the year.

While hot weather this summer may be reducing your weight, it also is providing you with increased physical endurance and thereby strengthening your hold on life.

Combating Illiteracy

Educational forces of the world are urged by Dr. Walter R. Siders, of Boston, to unite against illiteracy as a duty to humanity. Before the mid-year meeting of the educational forces of Ohio, Dr. Siders bespeaks united efforts to combat those evils which result in illiteracydisease, insanitation and misery.

To those who live in such highly education parts of the world as, say Ohio, it seems impossible that illiteracy still exists. But it is a fact that in some sections of this state-right at the very door of the Buckeye state, in fact-there are uneducated men and women and children, who not only do not know what it is all about, but who seemingly, don't care.

There will come upon the world, however, a scientific era when men will not only conquer the earth and subdue it, but when men will become the master of nature's secrets, applying them to his own welfare, when hatred of alien peoples will disappear and when this hatred will be replaced by appreciation of the culture of these aliens. When that day arrives a great forward step will have been taken in world-wide education, and half of the battle against illiteracy will have been won.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

By Frederic J. Haskin. WASHINGTON, D. C., July 30.—Although the geological survey last year completed topographic surveys of 15,924 square miles in the United States, exclusive of Alaska, and plans, this year, to map and survey 17,000 more square miles of land, the projected task of complete survey of national territory is far from its goal. In fact, geological survey officials admit the job is almost in its infancy; an expression readily proved by their added remarks that "at the present rate of pro- in Sebring. gress full completion of the mapping project will require at least one hundred years."

This fiscal year's program calls for mapping and surveying work in twenty-nine states, under direct super vision of geological survey field men, who will be aided by cooperative arrangements made with state bureaus. The region now being surveyed ranges from the high-, wildest, and roughest country, such as the mountain areas of the western states, to the flat lands and rolling plains of the Mississippi Valley districts. Airplanes are assisting the plodding force of field men, who must hike many miles every day in their line of duty.

This large engineering job of completing the topo-graphic map of the United States is being pushed as vigorously as the federal appropriations, combined with tate cooperative funds, will permit, yet only about 43 per cent of the country has been surveyed, and even some of this : rea must be resurveyed on a larger scale to meet the demands of growing communities.

The topographic branch of the geological survey is charged solely with the duty of making topographic maps. It maintains a larger corps of trained topographc engineers than any other organization in the world and the map engraving and printing division of the geological survey is the largest government map-printing organization

The United States geological survey was scientific even in its origin. It was created by congress, March , 1879, in response to a report made by the National Academy of Sciences, under instructions by congress. In the decade that followed the Civil war, four govern mental surveys had occupied the western field. Led by four masterful organizers, these independent geographic and geologic surveys actively competed for federal appropriations and for scientific occupation of the most attractive portions of the wild west.

This situation was displeasing to many Lembers of congress, along with officials of the National Academy of Sciences, who urged that these projects be united under one supervising organization. Hence, new legislation was enacted in 1879, under which the geological survey was created and established as a separate unit of federal department organization. Congress incidentally confirmed the office of Directors

Interpreted into action by geologists and engineers of the survey, these functions have meant helping a pio-neering people to settle vacant lands and an industrial people to harness the forces of nature in the great work of national development, and the well-defined purpose of safeguarding national resources for poster

The present organization of the geological survey is accurate maps, the creation of a corps of topographic engineers quickly followed the starting of geologic investigation in new regions. In 1888 investigation of the nation's water resources became an integral function of

Later, forestry surveys and studies in mining technology were specifically intrusted to it, but these activities subsequently led to the organization of separate bureaus, on anything, the husband would be the forestry service and the bureau of mines, and the construction program, based on the survey of reservoir sites, was made the work of the reclamation service.

Today, the investigative activities of the geological survey are distributed among five major branches-geologic, topographic, water resources, conservation, and

Stormy Poet Uses Radio To Woo Beauty He Spurned

Unable to Resist Pleas, # Ida Quits Paris to Join d'Annunzio

PARIS (IIN)-Gabriele d'Annunsio, Italy's stormy poet, and Ida Rubenstein, beautiful opera star, have "made up" after years of estrangement.

So "public" was their reconciliation that thousands of people over France and Italy knew of it almost as soon as the most concerned. Simply by twisting the dials of their radio it was possible to follow the various stages of the romantic interlude; for, shortly after midnight daily, it was d'Annunzio's habit to fill the ether with his importunities to the lovely Ida.

To the poet's pleadings, Mme Rubenstein answered each day with a lengthy telegram. D'Annunzio's enraptured exclamations or dissapointed musings on the succeeding night always gave a hint to the nature of the beauty's reply.

Mine. Rubenstein left Paris in the midst of a theatr' al engagement abandoned her season's program in mer self, and as long as ten years a runaway boarding school girl.

Smith's telegram to the convention asserting that he stood for modification of the present laws, with great trepidation and concern. Yet they were forced to admit that they had ample warning of it. Five days be-fore the delegates met in Sam Houston's big tabernacle, Governor Smith asserted unequivocally that he stood for a change in the prohibition laws.

This was in reply to a question pro pounded to him on Norman E. Mack's statement that he (Smith) had and always would stand for lib-eralization of the liquor laws. "No Pig in a Poke."

When this statement was made, the Tammany people were greatly concerned. They though the veteran Democratic leader from New York had made a great tactical blunder They wildly telegraphed to Governor Smith and long-distanced that Govern or Smith had not changed in any de gree his views on the necessity of revising the present prohibitory laws. This statement by the governor was given wide publicity. And in suite of convention went ahead and it the

If Wellsville would win both of its remaining games, Turk Nash would have to win its five to tie for the first half pennant. If Wellsville would lose one and win one, Turk Nash could tie with four wins and, further, if Wells ville would lose both, Turk Nash could tie with three wins and two defeats inasmuch as the two clubs' defeats are even-five apiece.

As a result, it can be seen that the first half championship laurels cannot be awarded for a few days, at least. Beginning the week's play-off schedule, Turk Nash will play Joe Dickey's Laughlin club Monday night at Smith Field, Chester. The game is sched uled as a home attraction for Turk Nash, and the Motors, who have been "orphans" this half, as far as home grounds are concerned, have adopted the Chester grounds, with the consent of the Chester management, for this MANAGER Roy Nicholson of the Wellsville club expects to relieve himself of his arduous duties at the head of the club for the econd half. Nicholson has given Wellsville one of its best baseball clubs in recent years and, unless the unforseen happens, will have one of the two entries in the championship series at the close of the season.

This baseball business has cost Nich olson, personally, probably more than has any other individual associated with the game here this season. Operating a night run on the street car line, he has been forced to lay off every night of a ball game, which during a number of weeks, runs into money. He has done this in the in-terest of sport and Wellsville fans hould appreciate his efforts.

From now on until the close of the eason, Charles Krause, manager of the Standard Garage, Wellsville, him-self a former baseball star, will handle the club. Krause has helped boost the game in Wellsville and should be able to maintain the club's winning In the meantime, Nicholson will not detach himself altogether from the game, but will be inactively associated with the club for the time being.

Four great values-for every purse and purposeoffered to you right at the time of the season when every car owner wants to replace his worn tires for holiday driving. Take no chances on getting there safely, quickly, economically - and getting home

No matter what experience you have had with other tires-remember this: there is only one tire that is Gum-Dipped and that is the Firestone Gum-Dipped Tire. Firestone saturates every cord in the carcass in a rubber solution and insulates every fiber of every cord with rubber, which minimizes internal friction, heat and wear. That is why Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires are setting new mileage records on hundreds of thousands of cars, as well as on fleets of taxicabs the famous Oldfield Tire. For more than four years these tires were sold as the foremost quality tire, securing higher prices than for any other high grade standard tire. Now Firestone has taken them over and you will find our prices less than any others, for such quality.

Courier Tires and Tubes are other great values which Firestone manufactures and distributes direct to us. A very small investment will place a set of these tires on your car.

Airway Tires are our special Firestone-built bargain offer to owners of small cars.

All the service of applying these tires on your car—and of taking care of them later—is included in these money-saving prices. Come in today.

Narrative of Love and Struggle Against Temptations

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

He was marking little square on the desk blotter and He was marking little square on the desk blotter and He was marking little square on the desk blotter and idea—didn't guess she was your sister until... Could you get her to tell more about the woman? We've not trace yet. Could you help me find her?"

"You believed it then? You did believe? Mr. Gade doubted—I will do that. Of course.

She left him, feeling vaguely comforted. Frances had been right; it was the thing for her to see him. How time he was! She wouldn't doubt any more. Marky had fine he was! She wouldn't doubt any more. Marty had his own reasons for helping Kitten, but Kent had the best reason of all. He would help because it was the square thing to do. Kent, couldn't but help even if he wished otherwise!

CHAPTER 47.

But Emily's faith wavered after she talked with Marty

Nolan. He came up the hill to see Kitten, rather elegant with his ruddy hair slicked smooth and a certain authority of manner. He had discarded the signet ring with the little dia mond setting that once had ornamented his hand and no jewel flashed in his scarf. It struck her that he was growing fastidious; there was something about him re miniscent of Kingdon Coles.

She told her news all in a breath. "I saw Kent Ros siter today. He doesn't think she did it, Marty." His brows came down; a chill crossed his eyes. "He

"He said the law believes everyone innocent until proved guity." But that lost force, some way, before his

He laughed. "Have you thought just what that means? Nothing. It's his job to prove murder. Of course he didn't mention that." "But he asked if we'd work with him. He seemed sin-

The Nolan leaned forward, a shadow of the old truculence going over him. "I used to think you had sense, Em. What I want to know is are you for us or against If youre going to join with your sister's enemy you'd better let us know." She shrank as from a blow. "Her enemy, Marty? But I can't believe—what do you want me to do?" She asked this dully, all confusion.

"Do nothing unless I tell you. What did Rossiter Bay? "That we must find the woman who came to the Inn."
"Oh, the woman!" He stirred impatiently.

He didn't believe the story about the woman. And Coroner Gade didn't believe it. Only Kent did. She couldn't give up that thought.

Had there been such a person? A beautiful woman going alone to Deep Valley Inn late at night? Had Kitten left such a one drinking with Nicky while she fled? For the first time a doubt which Emily beat back with all her strength claimed a place in her mind. This woman had to be; there was a woman and they must Marty went on: "It doesn't look any too good for the kid. Circumstantial evidence but . . . You'll have to talk her into being reasonable."

"Of course I will. She's willing to do anything." "Sure? How do you feel about it?"

"You don't need to ask."

"V y well. Let's see her." Emily called Kitten and the three went up to the sun-room. Marty sat a long time without speaking, elbows on his knees, head bent in thought. He got up and walked about after a time; finally moved his chair near Kitten and gave her a long look.
"You're nineteen, Kitten? Listen now to the story

I'm going to tell:

"There was a nineteen-year-old girl who mat a mar-ried man. Only she didn't know he was married. So when he invited her out she accepted it. It was all in fun at first but he knew how to make a girl love him. That's what he did to her; he made her fall desperately in love before she knew it

'And one night he gave her too much to drink and took advantage of her trust.

"He promised to marry her, so she kept meeting him By this time she had lost sight of everything but him.

Then another night he told her it was all over; that he had a wife and never intended to marry her. She threw herself into his arms and he struck her

He told her to get out. She knew he carried a gun; she had seen 't. In a fit of madness she snatched it Maybe she shet him; she never knew because every thing went blank."

He paused, studying the elfin face. "Can you cry, Kitten?

"I suppose so. "Without looking red and ugly?"

Emily asked, "What do you mean, Marty? What do you want her to do?"

I want her to cry while she repeats the story I've just She may have to tell it on the witness stand." "No!" That cut through the room like a sword. "Kitten-Marty, she can't do that; Never! A lie! You'd have her lie!" Marty asked, impersonally enough, "How do you know It's a lie? She hasn't said it is."

In a panic of tears, hands out before her, Emily grop ed toward her sister, put her face down on the bright head. "Kitten, it's not true? Little Kitten-

"It's not true," Kitten gulped, shaken out of her calm for once. Marty was coldly aloof. "Well You said she'd do any thing and that you'd have her. I tell you it looks had for her. What's the use of all that fuss, Em? Better save it for the jury. What I'm trying to do is keep her from going up the river." "Marty"- But the scene was over. Emily fainted quietly there on the moss green rug.

When she opened her eyes Marty had gone and Agne was bathing her head. "No need to be axious, Emmy lamb. There, now, feel better? Nothing to fear with such a fine friend as Marty. A splendid lad; a great-hearted one, that

CHAPTER 48.

Things did not change for a time. Days went by with Kitten remaining in her room for the most part, coming down for meals or when Marty called and asked to see her. Emily was not present at these conferences.

Agnes went about rather serenely, buoyed by the firm belief that Marty had the power and the will to lead them out of all their difficulties. She made a great fuss over him, insisting upon giving him a bite of freshly baked cake or a tart, as the case might be.

He accepted these favors somewhat absently and Emily remembered the first time he had come to the table in the dining room, red and awkward and choking on her mother's strong tea. He had gone a long way since then; his nner now was easy and assured and he had the appearance of a gentleman.

But she doubted that the inner Nolan had changed. He was different in another way; nearly a year now since he had aid he was going to marry her some day. Sometimes she wondered if he had given up that idea. Agnes, she knew, saw in his professional service only the devotion of one almost a member of the family. Emily asked herself if this was in his mind. If of fended by her indifference, he had waited for a chance to establish himself with her and was using the present opportunit for that purpose. If he came to her after he had cleared Kitten and asked her to marry him, what would she say? "What could she say?

She put that question from her. It couldn't be an swered now.

Marty!

Once Kitten confessed, shiveringly, that he had tried to run away. She had gathered what money she could. a pitifully small hore's, and had gone to the station. But when she tried to buy a ticket a man stepped up to her.

"I wouldn't do that, Miss Day," he had said. She had turned on him furiously. And he had pulled his coat back so she saw a badge pinned to the underside. "Deputy Sheriff" was engraved on the silver.

Oysters are not dumb, but are quite alkative, according to a European scientific writer. He recently said they know enough to provide themselves with sustenance in a most effi-cient manner, each drinking 15 galand extracting 99 per cent of the mi-nute food particles from the water. The constant opening and shutting of shells under water are sufficiently au dible to be broadcast.

Pout and Cry for Beauty.

Patients of a London beauty doctor must pout daily and cry at least once a week in order to acquire or preserve vouthful looks. Facial exercises are the latest beauty cult in the English city, and the doctor declares that if women will pat their cheeks and yawn and smile with their eyes wide open, and wrinkle their noses six times a day before the glass, such exercises will benefit the faces fully as much as the "daily dozen" helps the figures. He also says that such exercises will eventually do away with creams, lo tions and powders.

Dayton was chosen as the 1929 convention city and dates for next year's meeting were fixed as June 25 and 26, bage, 50 to 65.
At yesterday's business session, the convention adopted a resolution in-dorsing the G. O. P. presidential ticket. The Ohio Christian Endeavor Union has nearly a 50,000 membership in the Buckeye state.

Indorses Hoover. The motion indosing Hoover for the presidency was greeted with enthusiastic approval by the 4,000 delegates tending the session.

We, first as Christians, and then as interested partisans, serve notice that we are unreservedly for Herbert Hoover for president. We, therefore call on all Christian people of Ohio to join us to vote for Hoover for presi dent this fall in the name of decence and not cast ballots for booze," the ormal resolution read.

STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, June 30 .- The American Motor stocks were the leaders in a moderate forward movement at the beginning of the short session of the market today. Removal of all obstacles to the merger of the Dodge and Chrysler companies and the acquisition of the Pierce Arrow company by Steudebaker was an import ant factor in the broadening of the demand for the motor car shares. General Motors and Chrysler were the outstanding leaders in the forward move, but Nash, Studebaker, Willys Overland and Hupp were also in demand. Business Reviews at the week-end were favorable, expert opinion showing the "underlying solidity of busi ness" at the beginning of the second half of 1928. With political policies and platforms of the major parties all settled and candidates selected, it is believed that American business is is now in position to ignore political factors of all kinds for the balance of the year at least. Chrysler's new advance to around 74 was easily the feature of the second hour. Prompt completion of the mer ger with Dodge Brothers expected to improve the market position of the stock, and the strongest of speculative buying was in evidence today. eral motors topped 199 in active trading, but offerings impossible.
